

MUSEUM OF SAFETY GEAR
FOR SMALL ANIMALS

Bill Burns, Director

This article originally appeared in Alphabet City - Lost in the Archives edited by Rebecca Comay, Toronto, 2002

White-footed mouse (wearing safety glasses)

a. Triage Tent

b. Safety Vest

c. Work Gloves

d. Respirator

e. Visor

f. Emergency Blanket

The Museum of Safety Gear for Small Animals is the largest museum of safety gear for small animals in the world. It is an itinerant museum in three parts: the safety gear collection, the multi-media program, and the publishing house.

g. Dust Mask

h. Life Jacket

i. Bullet Proof Vest

j. Hard Hat

k. Knee Pads

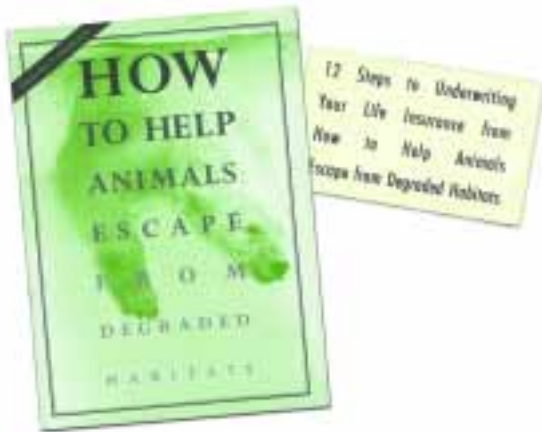

l. U.V. Goggles

Central to the museum's collection are nineteen pieces of scale model safety and rescue gear. The total weight of the safety gear collection is 944 grams. The pressure of the vacuum table used to produce the safety gear is eighty-four kilograms per square centimetre. If all the materials from the collection were unraveled in a line one micrometre thick it would stretch around the Earth's equator two and three-quarters times. Forty-three different fasteners are used in the construction of the safety and rescue gear. There are 2,750 machine stitches and 234 hand stitches in the museum's safety gear collection.

Basic Frog Rescue Kit

1. repti-cricket (zoo food)
2. anti-bacterial soap
3. tropical mist
4. survival kit
5. Italian mineral water
6. distilled water
7. 10% formaldehyde solution
8. binoculars
9. Reptocal supplement
10. screwdriver and magnifying glass
11. syphon pump
12. ferrum phosphor C30
13. decoy
14. calibrated eye dropper
15. water based yellow ink
16. allspice

Publications

Guides

Since its inception numerous people have visited the museum in New York, Paris, London, Los Angeles, Winnipeg, Vancouver, Toronto, Marseilles, and Montreal. If each of these visitors were represented by a copy of the Sunday New York Times a stand of forest the size of Hong Kong would have to be pulped. If all the users of our toll-free telephone service, 1-877-ecosfear, were placed head-to-toe in a row they would stretch from Bombay to Poona and back again.

Glasses :

Masks :

Wood Thrush Hylocichla mustelina

Trading Cards

The museum's conservation division contains 315 highly detailed scale model reptiles, birds, mammals, insects, and fish—all of which could fit into two bread boxes. They have never been exhibited. Our web site provides access to sponsorship of life insurance and annuities for eleven species of fauna on five continents. Since 1994 the museum has received support from more than a dozen governments and private sponsors in France, USA, Japan, Canada, and England. Fully thirty-two percent of the proceeds from sales of the museum's five guide books, postcards, and trading cards, has been reinvested in our publication programme during the past eight years.

At the Museum of Safety Gear for Small Animals we offer equal opportunities for all species. Please visit us soon.